

Preparing for a lab test or to visit a Patient Service Center

Pre-blood draw

- Please arrive at the service center with a completed test requisition from your doctor.
- Have your insurance card available.
- If you are having a glucose tolerance test, please call for an appointment.
- Please notify the phlebotomist or office staff if you have latex allergies.
- ACL reserves the right to limit access to the collection area to ensure the safety of patients and staff.
- Since this is a medical facility that contains biohazardous materials, we require that children accompanying adult patients be supervised at all times.

Do I need to fast before having my specimen collected at a Patient Service Center?

Some blood tests require fasting prior to having your blood drawn. Please contact your health care provider to determine requirements for your specific testing.

Do I need to make an appointment to have my specimen collected at a Patient Service Center?

If you are having a glucose tolerance test, please call for an appointment. Otherwise, appointments are not usually necessary. Our service centers are busiest early in the morning when the patients that are required to fast for testing usually arrive. If you are able to arrive in the afternoon, the wait is typically shorter.

Post-blood draw, help prevent bruising

- Apply pressure to the puncture site for a few minutes.
- Keep the bandage or gauze on the puncture site for several hours after the blood collection.
- Do not perform heavy lifting or exercise with the arm that the sample was collected from for approximately 30 minutes.
- Please follow any additional directions that the phlebotomist gives you.
- Please be aware that after a blood collection, some discoloration of the skin is normal. This discoloration will fade after several days.
